Tips for dealing with a power outage

Kansas City had a major snow storm this past weekend with snow totals that topped 10 inches and many houses in RGNA losing power for over 24 hours. Here are a few things to prep for the rest of the season:

Prepare	During	After
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Check your emergency kit and evacuation plan. • Have at least a half-tank of gas in your vehicle • Keep a hand-crank or battery-operated radio • Charge up devices (and batteries) • Learn how to manually release garage door • Notify power company on special medical equipment needs 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Report outage immediately - don't assume it's been reported • Use flashlights, not candles • Turn off and unplug unnecessary electrical equipment and appliances • Keep refrigerator closed as much as possible • Let faucets drip slightly • Use safe generator practices, no enclosed spaces 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Don't touch ANY downed electrical lines; report! • Reset digital clocks, alarms and other essentials • Throw away any food (particularly meat, poultry, fish, eggs and leftovers) that were in temps higher than 40° F (4° C) for 2+ hours • Reconnect garage door
